Well done, SIRINE!

Your Reading Level is: B2.1

What does B2.1 mean?

This means you can:

- recognize when a text provides factual information, and when it intends to convince or persuade the reader of something.
- use a variety of strategies to help you understand a text, including using contextual clues to identify the main points and to check your own understanding.
- understand personal letters, emails and other texts even when some colloquial or idiomatic language is used.
- recognize how texts are structured, for example when they present contrasting arguments, or offer problems and solutions or deal with cause and effect.
- Scan quickly through longer and more complex texts to find the most relevant details.

How can I improve my English?

Here are some suggestions:

- Practise reading longer and more complex texts to identify the main and minor points, and the writer's attitude and opinions.
- Develop your vocabulary by learning synonyms and how to paraphrase key ideas in different ways.
- Practise reading discussions in online forums and blogs and so on to identify explicit and implied attitudes and emotions.
- Choose some longer texts on topics that are new to you and focus on understanding the key details.
- Read academic texts and texts about professional life and focus on how they are organized and the formal and informal expressions they use.
